

A philosophic proof for the existence of a God:

I define God as "The perfection of things, meanings, and values."

Things, meanings, and values are improving.

Therefore, there is a God.

A creation concept:

Picture a stationary singular source of energy. Picture a stretch of this singularity to set it in motion with opposing spins. The motion of this energy evolves into matter and anti-matter respectively while maintaining the overall balance. These counterbalanced energies and their stationary source are connected by tensions, (strong, weak, and electromagnetic forces, etc.). Material energies have demonstrated a propensity towards organization, as shown by our 13.8-billion-year material evolution. Time is the measure of motion and implies relationship. The original stationary singularity had nothing to relate to. Tensions and the resulting attractions, create subsets and sentience is the awareness of these relationships. Attributes of these subsets are things like the material light of matter, the intellectual insight of mind, and spirit luminosity. These subsets further relate in their combinations. At each stage, the cooperation of the parts has the potential to function as their undifferentiated whole. The value in their existence is this ability to relate, to cooperate (unify or function in a unifying manner). We currently exist as a function of the cooperation between our energies: material (body/brain), mindal (brain patterns and consciousness), and spiritual (our quantum sense of unity/connection with the whole). At this stage we are mostly matter, with some sentience and a sense (faith) in the concept of spirit (soul). Our sense of connectedness with other people and our source, and our awareness of our spiritual intuitions strengthens and allows us to continue the search for more harmonies even after our material body has rearranged itself into something else. Energy can neither be created nor destroyed, so our energies continue trying to perfect these patterns of energy, and to relate to their source and resolve the tensions.